More potential victims sought of alleged Bedford child molester

Bedford Deputy Police Chief Rick Suts said last week that David Marek, age 38, of Bedford, has been arrested and charged by Bedford PD for sex crimes involving an 11-year-old female. He said police are trying to determine if there are any more possible victims. Anyone with information is asked to call Bedford PD at 440-232-1234.

Bedford officers responded to a Regina Dr. home in the early morning hours of Monday, Aug. 24, for a welfare check called in by Niagara Regional PD in Canada. Officers spoke to an 11-year-old girl who said that day she had sent a message to her friend in Canada saying she needed police regarding abuse going on in the household. The girl said the abuse had been ongoing since 2018.

The Bedford Detective Bureau learned that from Aug. 25, 2019, to Feb. 29, 2020, Marek had been allegedly molesting the girl and secretly video taping her with a covert camera he had placed in the bathroom and taking lewd pictures of her.

On Aug. 31, after obtaining a search warrant, police searched the Regina Dr. home and arrested Marek at his workplace on charges of gross sexual imposition and took him to the Bedford jail. Additional charges may be filed.

According to the police report, Marek was interviewed by police and admitted to molesting the girl, filming her in the bathroom and taking the lewd photos.

On Sept. 2, Marek appeared in court with counsel and his bond was set at $1 million. A preliminary hearing was waived and Marek was bound over to the Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court.

Maple Hts. Council fails to get votes to declare racism public health crisis

Mayor Annette Blackwell and other officials in Maple Heights have expressed their disappointment at failure of legislation at last week’s council meeting that would have declared racism a public health crisis in the city but hope to address the issue in some form in the future.

The resolution, sponsored by Council members Dana Anderson and Richard Trojanski, stated in part, "Maple Heights City Council wishes to declare racism a public health crisis, and would like to commit to improving the overall quality of life of our minority residents, business owners and visitors."

At the meeting, held via teleconference, Council President Ron Jackson stated that at a Committee of the Whole meeting held earlier last week it had been recommended that the legislation be put forth for a vote at the Wednesday, Sept. 2 council meeting.

Before council’s vote to suspend the rules and pass it on emergency, Councilwoman Toni Jones stated, "I am not sure everything is resolved on this piece of legislation, and I am asking the body if we want to put it on first reading right now."

Council voted to suspend the rules requiring first, second and third readings. However, when it came to passing it on emergency, Council’s vote was 4-yes, 3-no, with Council members Christian Ostenson, Jones, Anderson and Trojanski voting for it. Council members Stafford Shennett, Tanglyn Madden and Edwina Agee voted against passage.

Law Director Frank Consolo clarified that the legislation failed to pass because there were not five out of seven members, or two-thirds majority, voting yes on passing it on emergency. "It fails and does not go to first reading," Consolo said.

In a statement released after last week’s meeting, Blackwell stated, "I am deeply disappointed that this very important legislation did not pass, and that the effort of two city council members (Anderson and Trojanski) to prepare and introduce it was not supported or respected by the majority of council members.”

The incident is currently being investigated. Anyone with information is asked to call the Garfield Heights Detective Bureau at 216-475-5086.

COVID-19 evictions could leave more women without a vote: Part I of II

(Editor’s Note: This story was originally published by The Fuller Project, a nonprofit newsroom reporting on issues that affect women.)

By Malcolm Burnley and Rachel Dissell, The Fuller Project

Lynn Rodemann walked up the driveway, a mask fixed tightly to her face.

A mother of five welcomed her into the backyard, where she was cleaning up the colorful, damp decorations from a child’s birthday party the evening before.

Rodemann, a community outreach specialist, is part of a pandemic response team traversing Slavic Village to check on residents and offers information on a rent assistance program – and an application to vote by mail in the upcoming November presidential election.

Working the overnight shift as a corrections officer at a women’s prison during a pandemic, coupled with limited child care options is a daily struggle, the woman said.

“You could see how tired she was,” says Rodemann, who broke social distancing protocol to give the woman a hug. “I was so devastated for her.”

After that encounter, she wondered how a mom like the one she had met could have any energy left to worry about voting. A few days later, Rodemann returned to the home with a care package: masks, alcohol wipes and a thermometer.

“If there’s a possibility that they’re losing their house, they don’t give a s___ about voting,” says 39-year-old Rodemann, who has worked for Slavic Village Development in the historic but under-resourced neighborhood for six years.

“They’re worried about keeping a roof over their head and still eating.”

And just as fears of evictions remain in this community 10 minutes south of downtown Cleveland, it’s a concern facing thousands of Americans nationwide.

Policy experts predict an “avalanche” of evictions to hit low-income renters across the country this fall. Women are expected to be the majority of the 30 to 40 million Americans at risk of eviction by year’s end, according to findings from the Aspen Institute. If income- insecure women face losing their homes - and access to a stable address to receive voting registration, ballots, applications, and critical change-of-address forms - this could impact how many of them vote in the upcoming presidential election, experts say, adding this could also have a significant impact on the outcome of the November election.

“These aren’t issues that people look at together, but they should be looking at together,” says Shailly Gupta Barnes, policy director for the Poor People’s Campaign and the Kairos Center.

A recent NPR analysis found neighborhoods with higher evictions had lower voter turnout than the rest of the city, including other low-income neighborhoods.

Maple Hts. Council fails

Shenett, as chair of council’s Community Life and Education Committee, reported that the committee will be convening in the near future to discuss and create an initiative regarding community race relations, “We will meet and work with the city council subcommittees, starting with the Housing and Safety Committees, to come up with a more comprehensive plan to address the issues and challenges around racism,” he said.

Shenett added, “We will ultimately present our plan to the mayor and request that it is added as an attachment to a comprehensive resolution joining the national movement declaring racism as a public health crisis.”

Other legislation on agenda

As GOJO Industries prepares to open at 5700 Lee R. South, providing potentially hundreds of jobs and needed income tax revenue in the city, council moved forward with plans to facilitate access to the 325,000-square-foot plant, by approving a resolution authorizing Blackwell to enter into a contract with Ronyak Paving for the Lee Road South Repair project, at a cost of $148,900.

Council had passed a resolution at its August meeting authorizing Hren to begin plans and to advertise for bids for the project, and Ronyak submitted the lowest and best bid, last week’s legislation stated. Earliest start date for the project given by Ronyak is Monday, Sept. 21, with completion expected in 45 days, Hren stated.

Also passed was legislation authorizing Blackwell to enter into a contract with Terrace Construction Company, Inc., for the Mapleboro Avenue Watermain Replacement Project, at a cost not to exceed $253,135.90.

The city has been awarded $365,061 from the Cleveland Division of Water, through the Suburban Water Main Renewal Program, and the project will be funded in part by a grant, Hren stated. The earliest start date given was Monday, Sept. 28, with completion expected in 45 days.

Council also passed a resolution authorizing Blackwell to execute an agreement with the Northeast Ohio Regional Sewer District (NEORSD) for Community Cost Share Program Funds to obtain leaf collection equipment and rehabilitation of composting facilities at the city-owned property at 14580 Schreiber Rd., at a cost of $87,500.

Service Director Tony Ciresi has informed Blackwell and Hren that municipal leaf collection and composting can be provided most cost effectively by utilizing Service Department personnel.

The legislation also directs Ciresi to seek proposals for the leaf collection equipment and authorizes Hren to prepare plans and seek proposals for the compost facility rehabilitation.

Council also passed an ordinance to remove all references to a garage sale permit fee from the codified ordinances after it was found that legislation passed in 2016 failed to amend conflicting garage sale fee provisions, adopted by council in 1993.

Residents must still obtain a garage sale permit from the Building Department before holding garage sales, but all references to fees were deleted. However, the phrase “During any 12-month period, no property or premises in the city shall be used for more than three garage sales,” remains as before.

Announcements

Fire Chief Vito Kavalinis announced that the Maple Heights Fire Department responded to a fire in the 17000 block of Maple Heights Blvd. on Monday, Aug. 10, resulting in the death of Larry Wilkerson, 62. City officials expressed their condolences.

Officials congratulated Lt. Donald Grossmyer on his retirement this month after more than 29 years with the Maple Heights Police Department.

Blackwell commented briefly on the ongoing lawsuit brought by the city in U.S. District Court against Netflix and Hulu on the grounds they have not been paying Maple Heights a mandated video service provider fee, amounting to 5% of their respective gross revenues.

“I think we are going to prevail, and as mayor I will take every opportunity on behalf of our residents to go after these fees.”

Blackwell stated that residents were applying for jobs at GOJO, a grand reopening of the Farmer Jones Market was planned and two new houses were being built on Jefferson Avenue. Jones also stated that Reddii’s Pizza was going to reopen soon under new ownership.

COVID-19 evictions could leave more women without a vote

In Slavic Village, the worry is that voter turnout, which hasn’t rebounded from the last housing crisis more than a decade ago, could get worse. In 2016, only 38.5 percent of eligible voters cast ballots, the second-lowest among neighborhoods in the city.

Cleveland and Cuyahoga County have allotted $18.1 million in federal CARES Act and Community Development Block Grant money to help renters. As she goes door-to-door, Rodemann and others spread the word about the rental assistance program, administered by CHN Housing Partners, a housing nonprofit, which can cover rent for up to three months.

Energizing people to vote in a community like Slavic Village could prove difficult. The same has been true for encouraging people to fill out the U.S. Census.

The neighborhood has followed the pattern of other industrial and urban communities: a booming population at the start of the century, then deindustrialization post World War II, urban flight, and declining populations, empty homes and increases in poverty and crime rates.

By the Great Recession, the 5-square-mile neighborhood had more foreclosures in its 44105 zip code during the spring and summer of 2007 than any other zip code in the United States. The housing market, then in crisis across the country, was devastated in Slavic Village. As it continues its climb to recovery, the community again staves off another wave of housing displacement wrought by COVID-19.

Now get-out-the-vote efforts are more difficult as coronavirus cases top 5 million in the U.S. and nearly 4,500 in Cleveland. That’s why a vote-by-mail application is included in the same handout packet alongside rent payment assistance information that Rodemann hands out.

Organizers are also helping voters navigate Ohio’s ballot request process through smaller hands-on events at places like Daisy’s Ice Cream on Fleet Avenue, and Neighborhood Pets, a local pet food pantry and resource center.

Women have consistently outpaced men in voter turnout across racial groups and education levels since the 1980s. And because women, as a voting bloc, have historically leaned toward Democratic party candidates, evictions could mean a partisan impact. In 2016, then-Democratic candidate Hillary Clinton led among women voters by 13 percent compared to President Donald Trump.

That gap has widened in 2020, putting former Vice President Joe Biden ahead of President Trump by 25% among women voters, according to recent polling.

Aggravated Burglary / Felonious Assault Shooting
On Sept. 6, at 8 p.m., police were called to the 7100 block of Clement Ave. for a male shot. Police found the victim laying in the driveway with blood on the ground and under him. While police stopped the bleeding as he lay on the ground, the victim told officers his brother had shot him. Police recovered a loaded Smith & Wesson MMP rifle on the driveway. Victim transported to MetroHealth Medical Center. 4th District detectives to follow up.

GARFIELD HEIGHTS

Robbery
On Aug. 28, at about 3:06 p.m., a complainant went to GHPD to make a report about an attempted robbery that happened earlier that day at 3 a.m. The incident was at the Huntington ATM, located on Rockside Rd. The victim met with officers and told them a suspect came up to him brandishing a weapon and pointed the gun toward him, but his ATM transaction was already completed when the suspect approached him and he was able to flee the area safely. He told police he had a picture and a video of the incident, which shows the suspect to be a light-skinned black male wearing a white t-shirt with gray sweat shorts and white tennis shoes, and appearing to have two-toned dreadlocks tied up in a pony tail, and a goatee with a mustache. In the video the suspect was carrying what was believed to be a black semi-automatic handgun in his left hand.

Traffic Offense-OVI
On Aug. 24, at 10:50 p.m., officers followed up on a report of a Buick LeSabre which had crashed into an apartment building in the 4900 block of E. 141 St. GHFD removed the driver from the vehicle and as he was sitting on the ground, it was noted that a firefighter had to hold the driver up to prevent him from falling over. It appeared that he was under the influence of some type of drug. His eyes were glassy, eyelids half closed and he could not speak. He was transported to Marymount Hospital. Officers remained on scene due to the driver striking two vehicles that were parked and unoccupied, in addition to hitting the apartment building. Driver issued traffic citation for OVI, failure to control and no operator’s license.

Felonious Assault
On Aug. 25, at 11 p.m., officers were flagged down by a victim of a felonious assault at E. 131 St. and Maplerow Ave. Victim told police he was in the driveway of a home in the 4500 block of E. 126 St. to visit the homeowner when about 10 males surrounded his car. Some of them told the victim to leave and produced guns. One of them broke his driver’s side window and struck him in the face with a gun. Police found five of the suspects at the E. 126 St. home. The victim positively identified one of them as having struck him with the gun; he sustained a broken jaw. Victim refused transport. Three suspects taken to jail. Police discovered a handgun inside a cinder block on the ground in the driveway of the E. 126 St. home, which was found to be stolen from that residence.

Weapon Offense
On Aug. 30, about 10:51 p.m., officers responded to the E. 135 St. and Granger Rd. area for reports of eight gunshots and multiple black males fleeing the area on foot. Officers on scene quickly created a perimeter between E. 132 St. and E. 135 St. Four suspects were seen running eastbound on E. 134 St. between houses. Police located one of them in the driveway of a home in the 5300 block of E. 134 St. and he was detained without incident. Maple Heights and Valley View PD arrived on scene to assist. Officers then located a female in the backyard of a different home in the 5300 block of E. 134 St. who had a Taurus G2C firearm with a light and laser accessory attached to the frame containing a 32-round extended magazine near her feet.

She was detained and the firearm secured without incident. She told police she had been at a house party in the 5400 block of E. 134 St. and ran out once gunshots broke were heard. She denied every having possession of the firearm. Police transported her to her mother’s home in Maple Heights and released her. The mother said her daughter and son may have stolen the firearm from a house in Garfield heights and they both have pending cases for burglary. Officers were unable to find the other two suspects. Pending charges through the Youth Bureau.

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank Garfield Heights community and surrounding cities for attending Kurt’s Getaway 11th Annual People’s Choice motorcycle event on August 22, 2020. It was not my intention to offend anyone or not to follow the direction of our city officials. I spoke to all business owners in the area prior to hosting the event. No one expressed any concerns. I took all the necessary steps and followed all guidelines to put the event on. I paid off-duty Garfield Heights police officers for security for the event.

The Bike event had no incidents, no arrests or disorderly conduct. The bike show received positive feedback from the community. The majority of people that came to the bike show expressed how great it was to come to an event that had no drama. I did, however, make sure that all patrons that entered our bar had masks on and were social distancing once they entered into the bar. I could not enforce people wear masks when they were not on my premises (example: across the street from the bar or in other parking lots). There were off-duty police officers patrolling the area; no one expressed to the officers or myself that bikers were parked in driveways or blocking driveways. If any resident would have expressed their concerns to me or the officers we would have addressed their concerns immediately.

Sincerely,

Kurt Houston

Cuyahoga County Health & Human Services Dept. launches new website combining eight agencies

From babies to older adults, the Cuyahoga County Department of Health and Human Services provides programs that help thousands of residents from all walks of life. Some services are critical for safety and basic needs, while others help individuals and families build a brighter future through education, training and jobs.

In the past residents had to visit 10 different websites to get all this information. Now it’s all in one place. The new website: HHS.CUYAHOGACOUNTY.US has information from eight agencies so residents can easily find what they need.

“This is a big step toward helping Cuyahoga County residents get the help they need during an historically challenging time,” said David Merriman, director, Cuyahoga County Department of Health and Human Services. “Many people who never needed our help before are reaching out and we want to give them quick and easy access to information and services. Having everything in one place helps people learn more about what we do, how we can help them or their neighbors, and the value we bring to the community.”

Features include:

• A listing of all departments and services by topic.
• Don’t know what program you’re looking for? Just click on “I Need” and discover all the ways to get help.
